

During next half term Hippos class will be building on their new learning to find out more about the properties of everyday materials and understand there is a difference between an object and the material it is made from.

We will keep working at our daily phonics and sessions to develop our reading skills and comprehension of familiar texts. Some children will be working hard to generalise their understanding of key concepts such as big, soft, quiet and fast. Some children will be developing their exploration skills, learning to initiate and sustain investigation.

We will be working on our independence and ability to ask for help. We will carry out our jobs in class and at home to learn how to complete everyday tasks and activities.

We are looking forward to continuing our virtual Circle Time sessions with Hippos at home and at school, sharing our news and playing games together. We really like the Attention Autism Bucket because it makes a big mess!
